The Sermon on the Mount

The Sermon on the Mount is one of the most influential and studied portions of Scripture. It is God's kingdom message meant to transform disciples. God, who sees and cares about the heart, desires this transformation to be from the inside out—not by external righteous deeds and religion. Please join us as we attempt to gain a greater appreciation for Jesus' sermon through a deeper understanding of this text and its relevance to our ongoing sanctification.

One of the greatest needs in the American church today is for a better grasp of the foundational teachings of the Bible. This study is designed to both provide new believers with a solid theological foundation, as well as help more mature Christians sharpen their understanding of key doctrines. More importantly, it is designed to grow our view of God that we would love and trust Him more and more.

John, the disciple "whom Jesus loved", was now greatly advanced in years and the only apostle still living. However weak his aging body may have been, John showed great strength of faith and vitality for ministry in his epistles. He calls us to return to the basics of the Christian faith in order to identify and steer clear of erroneous teaching and experience sweet fellowship with the body of Christ for whom Jesus has given Himself. Our study of 1 John will seek to remind us of these precious truths and apply them to our living.

If there was one city whose name was synonymous with sin, it was Corinth. A wealthy center of trade, it also became a center of wickedness and debauchery. Unfortunately, worldliness of the Corinthian culture found its way into the Corinthian church. Paul's letter is both theologically rich and highly practical. It is both a call to repentance and holiness and an encouragement to embrace the hope believers have in Christ.
